Dialectical images from New York, Berlin, Paris, Marseilles,
Madrid, Granada, Mexico City

Photos by James Clifford

“... the poet destroys objects for the sake of rhythm, leaving tattered scraps of form in unexpected confrontation.”

Kazimir Malevich

“Image is dialectics at a standstill. For while the relation of the present to the past is a purely temporal, continuous one, the relation of what-has-been to the now is dialectical: is not progression but image, suddenly emergent.”

Walter Benjamin

“When you cut into the present the future leaks out.”

William Burroughs

Large, stylized pink graffiti text that reads 'KIM WATSON' across the upper middle section of the artwork.

Handwritten graffiti text in the lower middle section, including 'BS AS', 'JACO', 'RIO GUERTE', and 'DREIBOW'.
